

Llamas

By Brisa Fuentes

Chapter 1: Llamas Bodies

Have you ever seen a Llama up close? I have! Come on, I'll tell you about the most wanted pack animal from South America the Llama. Llamas bodies are quite fascinating to learn about! Did you know Llamas also can be mixed colors such as white and black. They can also be one color. Another interesting factoid is that Llamas have nails not hooves.

Llamas have long bodies and long necks. Llamas have thick wool and they also are two toed, can you believe it?

Additionally you're probably wondering about a Llamas body weight well adult Llamas weigh 300 to 400 lbs. Their height is 47" and 113 kg. Now you know about Llamas and hopefully you go see one with your own eyes then come tell me what you think of South America's most wanted pack animal, the Llama.

Ch:2 A Llama's Diet

What kind of Animal is most like a vegetarian? A Llama for example Llamas chew their food like horses. Llamas also eat lettuce which is a vegetable. Llamas especially eat freshly grown plants. Another fact about Llamas is that Llamas eat fresh grass. Now you know about Llamas diet.

Ch:3 Llamas habitat

Do you know where Llamas live? I do come on we'll learn about it together. Llamas live in South America in the andes mountains. Llamas also live on farms. Llamas are found in Argentina, Bolivia, Chile, and especially in peru. Now you know about Llamas habitat.

Chapter 4: A Llama's Life Cycle

Hello there, do you want to learn about a Llama's life cycle? Llama babies are called crias, how cute! Also the average lifespan is 15-30 years. Additionally, baby Llamas weigh 15 lbs. Did you know baby Llamas can walk one hour after birth. Now you know about Llamas life cycle.

Meet the Author

By Darwin Calles Del Cid

Hi, do you want to learn about Brisa? Her full name is Brisa Fuentes Perez. She was born on September 4th, 2009 and she is 8 years old. Her family is from D.C, she has a mom, a Dad, a sister and a Brother. She likes to go out with her family. Brisa goes to JoAnn Leleck. Her favorite subject is math. Her favorite special is art.

Works Cited

- Kiddle
- Sears
- Smithsonian National Zoo website.